MEMORANDUM FOR: Associate Deputy Director for Intelligence

SUBJECT : Distribution of OER Economic Indicators to Congress

1. As you know OER has been publishing its unclassified Economic Indicators not only as a detachable part of the Economic Intelligence Weekly but also as a separate unclassified publication for government use. We have distributed the Indicators widely within the government, but not outside.

2. A CIEP staff man suggests through Sid Zabłudoff that we send the Indicators to all the major Senate and House Committees involved in international economic affairs (see memorandum from Sid Zabłudoff attached). The questions are: (1) should we send the Indicators to Congress, and (2) should we do it directly, or through CIEP? I see no problem with sending Congress the Indicators and I believe we should do it directly.

Attached for your information are data sheets on economic indicators of six principal trading partners of the US. US data are included for comparison and are based on official figures prepared by appropriate agencies of the US Government.

The Office of Economic Research of this Agency prepares these data sheets for use by various departments of the Executive Branch interested in foreign economic developments.

I am sending you this copy to see whether you would be interested in receiving subsequent issues on a weekly basis.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence

SUBJECT: Economic Indicators

DDI-20-7

1. We have taken a number of soundings on the Hill on the subject of our providing the Economic Indicators directly to Hill recipients of this material rather than through the Council on International Economic Policy, as is now the case. Our contacts included the Chairman of the House Armed Services CIA Subcommittee, Representative Lucien N. Nedzi and the staffs of the Foreign Relations, Foreign Affairs, Ways and Means and Joint Economic Committees, as well as our staff contacts in the CIA Subcommittees.

2. Reactions varied from, "They are good and I want to continue receiving them, but I don't think it makes any difference who sends them to us," to "It's useful information, especially in these times and the Agency should get credit for providing it." The latter comment, incidentally, came from Mr. Nedzi, who added he thought the Office of Economic Research should make the distribution--not the Legislative Counsel. This suggestion may have been based on a feeling that the purpose of the change would become a little transparent--and therefore perhaps counterproductive--if OLC sent them out. This was a feeling that we also detected in several of our other conversations.

3. My personal feeling is that I rather doubt that the benefits to the Agency would make it worth the effort, but I think Mr. Nedzi's suggestion warrants serious consideration with regard to the overall distribution of the Indicators.

SENATE

There are 17 Standing Committees in the Senate, as established under the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 as last amended by the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 (P. L. 91-510). Each Standing Committee has a sharply defined area of jurisdiction outlined in writing in Senate Rule XXV, and all bills falling within that area are referred to that Committee.

The working units of the Standing Committees are their Subcommittees, which actually pass upon or rewrite bills proposed within their jurisdiction. Ordinarily the full Committee will accept the version of a bill proposed by the Subcommittee and report it to the full Senate.

Committees rarely report bills unfavorably; instead they will simply table any measure of which they do not approve.

AERONAUTICAL AND SPACE SCIENCES

—Jurisdiction includes aeronautical and space activities (excluding those associated with development of weapons systems or military operations); NASA; and survey, review, and preparation of studies and reports on all aeronautical and space activities of all agencies of the U. S. (including activities associated with weapon system development and military operations).
